THE WINES

Amalia Garnacha

- 100% Garnacha
- Deep red cherry colour.
- Fresh clean aromas of ripe red fruit with a twist of mint.
- On the palate, the wine is fresh, meaty and well-balanced. Very easy to drink.

WHERE IT COMES FROM

- DO Campo De Borja located in Aragon just south-east of Navarra.
- Known as the Empire of Garnacha.
- Winegrowing tradition dating back to 12th Century .
- High proportion of old vines.
- Diverse “terroirs” and generally low-yielding vines producing wines of structural and aromatic complexity.
- Continental climate with cool, dry “Cierzo” winds in the winter and Mediterranean influences in the summer.
- Extreme climate and contrast between daytime and nighttime temperatures help to produce wines with good acidity, intense colour and pleasing tannins.

WHERE IT IS MADE

- Amalia is made for Long Wines at one of the area's leading wineries, particularly well-known for its excellent Garnachas.
- 3,700 hectares of vineyards on distinctive rusty-red stony ferrous soil around 500 metres.
- Situated on gentle slopes with good sun exposure just below the Moncayo mountain.
- Established in 1984 it has recently restructured many of its vineyards and preserved many of the more ancient vineyards.
- It is now run by a young go-head and flexible team who understand the needs of global markets.
- Combining quality, tradition, modern know-how and value.
